Letter From the President

Push and pray. I recently heard author Jeannette Walls (The Glass Castle) speak in Iowa City. Ms. Walls was describing her grandmother who sometimes drove a small school bus. If the bus became stuck or just needed help up a hill, her grandmother would have her students get out and recite prayers as they pushed the bus. 'Push and pray' was her grandmother's shouted encouragement to her students.

Push and pray - I like the combination of action and faith. The Ecumenical Center is continuing its work on several programs. Helping Hands Ministry is again helping to administer first month's rent programs designed to help people in need get into stable housing situations. The rent monies are provided by Linn County and Marion. Helping Hands Ministry, through your donations to the Ecumenical Center, provides the administrative support to make the program work. The first month's rent program also helps stretch Helping Hands dollars when providing financial aid for other needs.

CompuPlace is expanding the computer hardware and software available to individuals with disabilities. Director Robin Brunner continues to expand the accessibility of the computer programs available to CompuPlace users.

New this fall, the ECC is working with Marvalee Vuichard to expand community awareness for the Center's programs. Some of you may have talked with Marvalee and I hope more of you will the opportunity to do so in the near future.

Push and pray. There is a great need in our community for action and faith. Thank you all for your support of the Ecumenical Community Center. Collectively our action and faith will move us down the road as we address the challenges our community faces.

CITY OF MARION WINSLOW ROAD TAX INCREMENT FINANCE (TIF) DISTRICT FUND: JANUARY 2008—AUGUST 2010 $36,260 FIRST MONTH RENT

Thanks to the City of Marion, 91 households representing 214 persons were assisted with first month rent. To qualify, the household had to provide proof of income for the past three months falling within 130% of the Federal Poverty Income Guidelines, be able to pay their own rent deposit and show an ability to pay ongoing rent and basic living expenses. Households were required to exhaust any help from Linn County. Landlords had to be willing to accept first month rent from Helping Hands. The maximum payable rent was $600. Of the 91 households, 55 were families and 36 were individuals. Telephone interviews 6 and 12 months after assistance show the households in stabilized housing. It is with this additional type of community support that Helping Hands Ministry

During the first 8 months of 2010, HHM has served 481 households representing 1,010 persons! A total of 24 churches have donated $52,054 for HHM serves of which $48,065 has been distributed during this 8 month period. The majority of requests are for rent or rent deposit and utility/deposit (electricity primarily). Most of the households are eligible for heating assistance through HACAP's energy assistance program. HHM does not duplicate already existing program assistance.

HHM has just been notified that it has been approved for another $70,000 grant from the Housing Fund for Linn County (HFfLC). This award will be used to help Linn County residents with limited income to move into a place by paying either the first month's rent or the deposit, maintain a place by paying one month's rent to avoid eviction, or by paying an old utility bill or utility deposit to get utilities in their name at the new place. With the first $35,000 HFfLC grant this year, 83 households representing 202 persons were assisted. The new grant should serve 150-160 households in 2011. We thank you for your continued support and prayers.

Kiersten Onanga is a Senior at Mt. Mercy University and is doing her Social Work internship at HHM. She plans on pursuing a Master's Degree. Her passion is helping families. HHM is pleased to have Kiersten 24 hours a week for a total of 312 hours during the Fall semester.

On a personal note, she is married with one child and another due in February.

In addition to becoming fully trained on the Helping Hands Ministry Program, Kiersten will also be involved in small groups for the Zero Poverty Project's "Getting Ahead" program. Stop by and introduce yourself. Welcome, Kiersten!

COMPUPLACE: A specialized Learning Lab for People with Intellectual Disabilities or Assistive Technology needs.

Since the last issue of the ECHO, we have been upgrading our lab with newer XP machines from the REACT Center, and with wonderful new integrated TouchScreens and some new software purchased through a grant from the Rockwell Collins Employee United Fund. Many thanks to Rockwell Collins and its commitment to our community!

Averages for the first seven months of 2010 look like 2009. Each month we are serving 47 clients, providing 157 client-hours of service with 163 paid staff hours. In addition to maintaining this level of service, we have developed exciting new teaching tools to be used by our clients both here and in their own homes. Through the gracious and enthusiastic assistance of REACT volunteer Bryon Wiscons, we have a Question and Answer game, a Spelling game with an on-screen QWERTY keyboard, and most recently, a Matching game. These games, pictured below, can be personalized with the subject matter most salient to our individual clients, and with the words and pictures most relevant to them as they go about their daily lives. Since games made for adults with disabilities are often expensive and are not always suited to an individuals' skills and / or interests, these games comprise a series of projects with great potential.

With the Question and Answer game, we work on reading both isolated words and words in a sentence. It can also be a logic task. For example, one should look for a number in answer to “How many...?” The Spelling game can help a person who does not speak to communicate needs and wishes more precisely. The Matching game, can allow “peeking” and clients can work on mouse skills as well as exercise memory.

We need volunteers to take pictures, size digital images, and write trivia questions!
